

Linked and Computed Fields | Quantum Cloud

This guide explains the different types of fields: linked, semi-linked, computed, and semi-computed and outlines how each interacts with case information and user input.

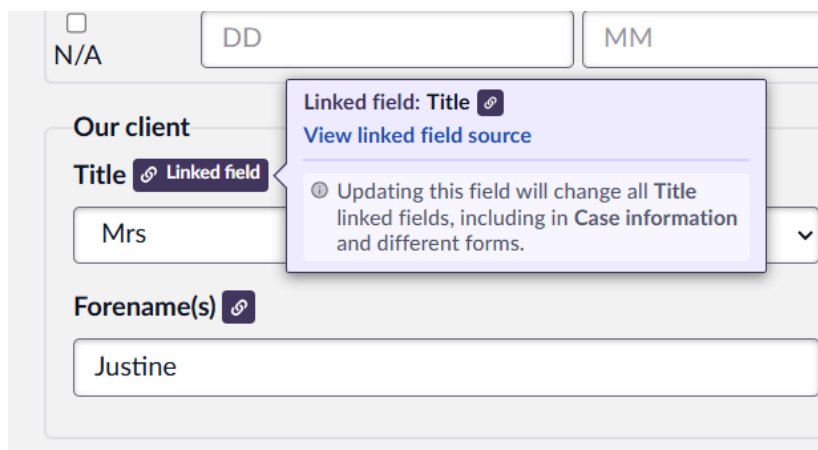

Linked Fields

This data links to case information and if changed within the form the data writes back and updates the case information.

The screenshot shows a form section titled "Our client". It contains two fields: "Title" and "Forename(s)". The "Title" field is a dropdown menu with "Mrs" selected and a small link icon to its right. The "Forename(s)" field is a text input with "Justine" entered and a small link icon to its right.

Clicking the Linked field text will provide more information.

This screenshot shows the same form as before, but with a tooltip displayed over the "Title" field. The tooltip has a title "Linked field: Title" and a link "View linked field source". Below this, it contains an information icon and the text: "Updating this field will change all Title linked fields, including in Case information and different forms." The "Title" field itself now has a label "Linked field" next to the link icon.

Clicking 'View linked field source' will take you to the section of the Case Information that this data is pulled from.

Semi-Linked Fields

This data initially links to case information, however if changed within the form, does not write back or update the case information.

You can use 'Replace' to change the data to match the case information.

 Semi-linked fields aren't fully linked to Case information and can contain different, form-specific data (e.g. only one child, rather than all of them). If Applicant name here doesn't match Case information and you want it to, click Replace.
